SATURDAY MORNING NOV 29 186

City Council Proceedings

In addition to the reports published by us on Thursday morning last, we desire to comment upon certain other transactions had by our honorable City Council at its last session. It will be remembered that Mr A B Hallock some two or three weeks ago, rendered a report of his doings as City Surveyor in accordance with instructions given some time during the early part of last summer and that a bill amounting to $642 50 was presented by him for services in surveying the streets establishing grades, marking plots &c &c. At the time of the presentation of the claim, a motion was made that the bill be paid, and upon a vote being taken thereon, the result was as follows

Ayes—Messrs, Holmes, Williams and the President—3 Nays—Messrs Coffin, Silvers and Walling—3 There were only seven members present, and Mr Hallock being personally interested in the result, could not vote, hence the motion to pay the bill was lost upon a tie vote. At the next meeting of the Council, if we mistake not, a resolution was presented by Mr Holmes, that the President be instructed to draw a warrant upon the Treasury for the payment of Mr Hallock's bill. No action was taken upon the resolution further than recording it in the proceedings of the meeting. After the general business of the session had been pretty well gone through with, on last meeting, Mr Holmes moved to take up the resolution referred to, which motion was declared out of order by the President upon the very proper and correct ruling that a bill having once been presented to the Council and refused, that bill could not again come up for action, that a vote refusing the payment of any bill by the Council was a finality, and that the only recourse a claimant could have thereafter was an appeal to the Courts. Mr Hallock appealed from the decision of the President and we will do him the credit of saying he displayed much ingenuity and originality in the lengthy argument used to sustain the appeal. The question being, shall the chair be sustained, the vote resulted as follows Ayes—Mr. Holmes and the President Nays—Messrs. Dennison, Hallock and Silvers. The decision of the President was therefore overruled, and the resolution to pay Mr Hallock's bill passed by a vote of four yeas to no nays.

After the passage of resolution to pay Mr Hallock's bill, a motion was made to take up the bill of the Street Commissioner, amounting to $115 00, which was pretty much in the same situation as instanced above, with the exception that the Council had, after refusing to pay the bill, referred it to the Committee on Claims. The Chairman of this Committee being absent and the bill probably in his possession, a motion was put and carried to relieve this Committee from the further consideration of the bill, and the bill was ordered paid by four yeas to one nay.

Now, we have been thus explicit in the statement of these proceedings, not because we did not want to see the bills paid, but for the purpose of showing what trouble and expense might have been entailed upon the city, had not some such a course as this been taken by the City Council to get out of a bad scrape. That these bills were just and properly rendered, no one of this Council have ever denied, but from a petty desire to stave off their payment which, as it was alleged would operate as a scare to certain parties, they voted not to pay them and thus force the claimants to appeal to the Courts for their just dues for services rendered according to the City Charter and the approval of the City Council. The City was legally and morally bound to pay these bills, and there was no possible way to avoid them, and had not the action above reported been taken by the Council, a bill of costs would have unquestionably been added to them by the proper Courts.

"The Sanitarian."—By prospectus received last evening, we learn that another new paper is to be started at Oregon City, "edited by an association of young men, residents of that city, to be called the Sanitarian, and devoted to the interests of the Sanitary commission, and uncompromising in its loyalty to the Union." It is to be published semi monthly, at $2 00 per annum. One half the subscription when received will be delivered to the agent of the Sanitary committee at Oregon City. We wish them much success.

Fire.—We learn that the dwelling house of Doctor Hagar was burned to the ground at Vancouver on Thursday morning last about 8 o'clock. We did not learn the particulars of the accident further than the fire was first discovered in the chimney, but for want of water at the garrison could not be extinguished. All the household property was saved, and no further loss was sustained than one of Uncle Sam's log houses which had been fitted up for a residence. The fire lasted several hours, and furnished an occasion for the gathering of the populace at an early hour on Thanksgiving day.

Madame Bishop.—The report that Madame Anna Bishop was burnt to death at Milwaukie turns out to be a mistake.

Summary of Eastern News

The following interesting summary of Eastern news is from the Sacramento [illegible] of November 21:

The dispatches from the East shed some light upon Burnside's preliminary operations in Virginia. At an early period of the war, Fredericksburg was indicated as the proper base of operations against Richmond. If the James river [illegible] were rendered [illegible] At Aquia Creek the depot of supplies for a [illegible] army may be [illegible] guarded by gunboats. The town of Fredericksburg is completely commanded by Falmouth Heights, on which McDowell erected fortifications. Then there is a railroad route to the rebel Capital sixty miles in length, and a large force defending upon that road cannot be easily cut off from its depot of supplies. Burnside has secured this position, and is probably advancing already towards the decisive siege of the campaign. On Saturday November 15th Bayard's Federal cavalry suddenly dashed into Falmouth and took possession of the heights, the rebels there having barely time to effect their escape. This was followed on the 16th by a movement of the left wing of the army, under Sumner, towards Fredericksburg, while in the meantime the quartermasters converted Aquia Creek into a depot of supplies. The railroad line from Alexandria to the Rappahannock which is too long to be effectually guarded against raids of the enemy's cavalry then ceased to be the main reliance of the Union army. Up to the evening of the 19th no battle was reported at the headquarters of the army at Washington, and it was believed that the main body of the rebel army had fallen back towards Richmond, leaving Jackson Stuart and a portion of Hill's corps between Culpeper and Warrenton apparently watching their opportunity to strike the flank or make a raid in the rear of Burnside's right wing, which we surmise is under command of the brave and vigilant Hooker. The various columns of the army were moved promptly, and if they have experienced any check the fact has not been revealed. The imminent danger of a formidable movement from the south side of the James upon Richmond has probably been the chief reason for the withdrawal of Lee's army to a position covering the capitol, but admitting of the quick dispatch of reinforcements to any threatened point. This being the situation, the principal cause of apprehension, if any is indulged, must be the difference in the speed of movement. If Lee be allowed to hurl the bulk of his army upon one of our armies while the march of another is delayed through slowness or want of concert on the part of our Generals, we can only expect a renewal of disaster. But if Burnside's energy be as untiring as the emergency demands the plan of operations promises a magnificent success. In making a dash upon the right wing of the Union army, Stonewall Jackson will encounter the same indomitable leader who forced him back at Antietam and would have beaten him but for that unlucky shot in the foot. We suppose Franklin to command the center, and Sigel to remain in reserve.

General McClernand is organizing at Columbus Ky, a gigantic expedition for opening the Mississippi. It will consist of ten powerful gunboats and about thirty thousand men, chiefly troops from Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. It is announced that the expedition will not start until the middle of December but this may be thrown out as a blind. The people of the Northwest are impatient at the delay in opening their great highway of communication with the Gulf region.

St Mary's Georgia, has been destroyed by Federal gunboats. A land force met with resistance at that point, and the town was therefore shelled. At least, such is the rebel story. St Mary's is on the north bank of St Mary's river and has a good harbor.

The Unionists of Kentucky are actually demanding stringent measures, which a short time ago they denounced as unconstitutional, etc. They insist that the rich Secessionists shall be compelled to contribute to maintain the plundered and suffering loyalists of Eastern Kentucky. The quality of border State Unionism is improving under the discipline of rebel raids. By all means let this righteous demand of the Kentuckians be promptly answered. The Secessionists of Middle Tennessee are moving south in the wake of rebel armies.

From the anxiety evinced by the Secessionists at Memphis to hear from Mobile it is inferred that Farragut has been at work there.

Gen Banks cannot reach Texas too soon. In the western portion of the State the loyalists were suffering terrible outrages, under the savage rule of one General Herbert, probably Philemon T [illegible] the notorious several times reported dead and as often resurrected. Seventy-five refugees have reached New Orleans, and hundreds of others have fled to Mexico. Recruits can easily be obtained to swell the ranks of the Union army. The seaports are in possession of the Federal forces, and an army of 25,000 men, with the assistance of the Union population, would probably suffice for the work to be done.

The European intelligence relates to the pirate Alabama, the burning of a British vessel on the coast of Cuba by an officer of Farragut's fleet, the Roman question, and the new subject of contention raised by the abdication of the King of Greece. The London Daily News demonstrates that the fitting out of such vessels as the Alabama is a violation of international and statute law. The Spanish Court has been informed that the burning of the Blanche was unauthorized by the American Government. The Roman question threatens to split the French Cabinet. In Greece a powerful Republican party demands the creation of a Federal Government, and the annexation of the Ottoman provinces of Epirus, Thessaly and Macedonia, while, in the mean time, the Bavarian dynasty will insist upon its claims. Russia is understood to favor the federation scheme.

Fire at Salem

Salem, Nov 27 1862.

Editor Oregonian

About 5 o'clock last evening the bell on the Hook & Ladder Company's building rang out the alarm of fire proceeding from the livery stable of Solomon Durbin located on the corner of Commercial and State streets. The building, together with a large quantity of hay and grain was entirely consumed. Estimated loss $2 500 or $3 000. M.

Mutual Dissatisfaction.—An Eastern correspondent very correctly remarks:

"The rebels are as bitterly disappointed with the result of their campaign in Kentucky as we are. General Bragg is abused in the South as violently as Buell in the North. The strategy of the B. B.'s is subjected among the rebels to the same ridicule heaped upon it in this quarter. The rebel army is dissatisfied with Bragg as the Federal army with Buell. Bragg and Buell are well matched and will be yoked in history and marched like prize oxen to immortality."

(SPECIAL DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.)

LATER FROM THE EAST.

Washington, Nov 22—A dispatch from Headquarters of the Army dated yesterday, says that our artillery opened fire upon the enemy while they were moving their stores from Fredericksburg, disabling the engine and damaging the track. It is not believed they have a large force in that vicinity.

New York, Nov 22—A Falmouth dispatch to the Tribune says, the rebels planted two Rodman guns on the hill back of Fredericksburg, but our batteries on this side soon silenced them.

A dispatch from Headquarters dated 11 o'clock last night says General Sumner had demanded the surrender of Fredericksburg from the Mayor and Common Council. If refused sixteen hours would be given for the removal of the non-combatants from the city at the end of which time the city would be shelled. The message was conveyed to General Longstreet who [illegible] camped a short distance from the city. As the demand was made on the civil authorities the Mayor sent a reply, which was evidently written at the dictation of General Longstreet to the effect that the Confederates would dispute the Federal occupation of the city. He complained of the short time allowed for moving the women and children. The giving of more time for this purpose is now under consideration. Permission has been given the citizens to run one train from the city, but only for the conveyance of women and children.

Advices from Port Royal say the yellow fever had entirely disappeared.

A Washington letter, dated Nov 21st says some apprehension has been entertained for the forces under Gen Sigel but to-day it is believed they have fallen back in good order and that they can resist any attack made on them.

The Potomac river is now so high as to render it impossible to ford it.

Washington, Nov 22d—Advices from our Mexican minister by last arrival are favorable.

Congress met Oct 20th. Representatives from all the States were present, and a law was passed giving the Government extraordinary powers to resist the invasion, making Juarez Director, and almost Dictator, for six months or the war with powers such as were conferred on Doblado at last Session.

Philadelphia, Nov 23d—Harper's Ferry letter says it is rumored that Jackson is still near Winchester with 40,000 men.

Washington, Nov 23d—Last night was a busy time at Fredericksburg in removing the inhabitants. Military authorities also not idle, as daylight this morning revealed a line of earthworks to the right and rear of the town, as a result of night's labor. Our artillery is now being placed in most favorable positions, while the encampments which are within range of enemy's guns, are being removed further back from river. There are very strong reasons for our not opening on the city to-day, unless forced by rebels.

A special dispatch states that in accordance with the late order of General Halleck, one hundred officers absent from their commands without leave have been stricken from the rolls of the army. Nearly a thousand more are to be treated in like manner.

Washington, Nov 21st—Governor Yates of Illinois had an interview with the President yesterday and urged upon him the necessity of standing by his recent proclamation if he hoped for the speedy suppression of the rebellion. The President replied that he was as much determined in his course as ever.

Cairo, Nov. 21st—The Memphis Bulletin of the 10th says Bragg arrived at Holly Springs last Saturday with 15,000 troops, and that he, Pemberton and Price, were making every preparation to give Grant battle.

A report from Richmond says there are nearly one hundred thousand (?) patients in the hospitals there.

A Successful Medicine.—Dr WM HALL'S BALSAM has attained its present unexampled reputation and popularity, not by exaggerated statements of imaginary cures, but through the influence of responsible citizens who speak what they know by experience of its intrinsic merits in cases of all forms of Lung disease, not even excepting Consumption.

Williams & G[illegible] vs Lansing Stout — Judgment for plffs [illegible]

HOTEL RUNNERS.—Marshal Grooms brought up several of the boisterous noisy boys denominated Hotel Runners, last evening with a round turn and Recorder McCoy gave them a very appropriate lesson in the way of fines etc the result of which was the getting out of license by several in accordance with ordinance made and provided The license however, we hope will not [illegible] them to continue their deafening yells and [illegible] conduct, but only allow them to solicit customers in an orderly and quiet manner The same ordinance relative to Runners also requires the owners of hotels to take out license to keep the same but we believe it has not been complied with in a single instance up to the present time

A PITIABLE CASE —We have heard of a case of distress in a poor emigrant family which calls for the immediate attention of our charitable citizens A family of husband wife and two children are reported to be sorely afflicted with the small pox at a house about a mile south of the city The wife and two children are in a helpless condition with this dreadful disease and the husband is almost exhausted in strength and means to supply their wants Will not some good citizens see to this immediately and procure the services of some one who will volunteer to go to their relief? We believe they will SERENADERS —We learn that a party of serenaders were out at a late hour on Thanksgiving night, discoursing sweet music to the slumbering multitude; but as the night was too cool to admit of a prolonged visit only a few of our best citizens were favored with their visit Come again boys hope it won't be so cold next time.

RESIGNED —We learn that Justice Barr has resigned the Magistracy for South Portland precinct, and will shortly remove to his farm

The Markets.

We note but slight change in the price of articles in market except an advance in bacon wheat and oats Trade has remained about as brisk as usual for the last two or three weeks The demand for wheat, oats, bacon, eggs, butter, and in fact for all the staple articles of produce, is very great there being at least twenty buyers to one seller Our farmers can rest assured that they will find ready and quick sales for all articles of produce at prices quoted. We would further advise them when they come to market with their produce, not to be too hasty in selling as perhaps better bargains and more satisfactory results can be obtained by looking around a little, than by a hasty sale made to those who are in the habit of running out into the streets after them The present state of the market is perhaps the most favorable opportunity the farmers will have to dispose of their surplus produce, for unless the demand now rapidly sought is soon supplied by the farmers of this State, our merchants and traders will look to foreign markets The price of everything is now nearly up to the highest figures that can be safely reached by them We have already heard of several who have sent orders below for articles of produce

The arrivals during the week have been the steamer Pacific with 450 tons of freight assorted merchandise, and bark Falkenburg with a large cargo of barley, and other articles for this market.

O Great Master are thy footsteps
Even now upon the mountains?
Art Thou walking in thy wheat field
Are the snow winged reapers
Gathering in the silent air?
Are thy signs abroad the glowing
Of the distant sky blood reddened—
And the near fields trodden [illegible]
Choked by [illegible] triumphant—
Sure it must be harvest time

Who shall know the Master's coming?
Whether at dawn or sunset
When night dews weigh down the wheat ears
Or while noon [illegible] high in heaven
Sleeping lies the yellow field
Only may thy voice [illegible] Master
Peal above the reapers' chorus
And dull sound of sheaves [illegible] falling—
Gather all [illegible] My garner
For it is my harvest time

A Story of Counterparts

A quiet, uneventful life was mine until I left the shelter of my father's [illegible] in Gorham, and accepted the desk of a book keeper in the wholesale establishment of Shears & Prescot in the busy little city of Weston

But there, one fine afternoon in October, just in the midst of an Indian summer I invited Lillie Prescot, with whom I was very nearly in love, to walk in the park with me

Her little hand in its delicate primrose colored glove, rested on my arm, her black eyes were lifted to my face I felt particularly tender and confidential, and at peace with all mankind We were speaking of the gorgeousness of the distant hills, clothed as they were in their mantles of crimson foliage, when I was brought to a stop by hearing my name pronounced in a tone neither sweet nor agreeable.

"Mr. Smith, I'll just trouble you to stop a minnit!"

I looked up A woman of fifty or thereabout, effectually blockaded up the sidewalk before us, indeed her proportions were colossal. If ever I have seen the personification of indignation, I saw it in her expressive countenance

"Madam!" I exclaimed, retreating a little from the battery of flashing gray eyes which she caused to bear upon me

"You need'nt madam me," she cried, waxing redder. "I'll just trouble you to settle this little bill" And she thrust an ominous piece of paper before my eyes which read, substantially

RICHARD SMITH TO MRS JULIANA DIGGINS		DR
For six months' board..		$96 00
For " "	washing	12 00
		$108 00

I returned the bill to her

"I owe you nothing, madam. I never saw you before in my life"

"You need'nt lie to me!" cried she, setting her arms a-kimbo. "I hain't kept a genteel boarding house fifteen years for nothing sir! You'll either fork over on the spot, or I'll take the law"

"Take it," remarked I "You're welcome to it."

"You think to sarse me young man Remember what you promised I'll have you took up for it, as sure as my name's Diggin's! I'll larn you better than to deceive a trusting widder woman in that way, you disateful hypocrite!"

"Madam, you insult me I"—

"Oh, it looks well for such as you to stand on your dignity Mighty lofty all at once—You've forgot the cream flapjacks I used to make, and the kisses you used to give me every evening after the rest of 'em was gone to bed You've forgot the half dozen shirts I made you and never charged you a cent You've forgot that you solemnly promised that you'd marry me last Tuesday morning You've forgot that, have you?"

"Yes—yes—I never—no!" stammered I dropping Miss Lillie's arm in consternation

"Do you dare to deny it?" cried she in a rage.

"Yes, forever and a day afterwards" I roared out. "Do you think I would marry an old termagant like you? I'd sooner wed my grandmother"

I saw the fire flash up in her eyes The widow was waxing dangerous I dodged the reticule she aimed at my head and fell over backward as she charged upon me with her half-mourning parasol Miss Lillie turned and fled. I thought discretion the better part of valor, so I leaped over a garden fence near at hand, and was immediately attacked by a large watch dog that sprung out of a kennel near by I seized a dahlia pole and hurling it at the belligerent, made good my escape by fording a duck pond and reaching the next street, from which I hurried home at the best pace I could command

I was resolved that I would not remain in Weston a day longer Evidently there was in the city some other Richard Smith for whose notorious self I was mistaken

I penned a hasty note to my employers—giving my reasons for leaving them—packed my trunks paid my board, and marking my baggage 'R d Smith, New Hampton' I entered the cars for the locality specified on my trunks

In selecting New Hampton as my destination I had no very definite purpose in view but in a place of its size I had no doubts of being able to secure some lucrative situation and the office of 'Boots' was better, if I could be left unmolested than the station of the President if I must lose my identity, and be attacked by viragos in the street

It was near noon of the next day when the train whirled up to the depot at New Hampton I alighted and was hastening down the platform to look after my baggage when I saw a young lady in a brown silk walking dress, earnestly regarding me As she caught my eye, she threw up her veil and sprung toward me. As the veil swept back, it revealed the loveliest face I had ever looked upon I had never dreamed of anything half so beautiful. In involuntary admiration I stood still She threw herself into my arms—her arms fell around my neck—her velvet cheek touched mine—and such a kiss as she planted full on my lips! My face was in a blaze I felt as if I had been stewed in honey with lavender for flavoring.

FROM BOISE —A private letter from Hon Lyman Shaffer now in the Boise mines contains the following

The diggings here cover an unknown extent of country and will rank among what is called dry diggings, extending over low hills, sags and gulches in a beautifully rolling country with no underbrush and all firs to make comfortable shafts and woods pastures in summer The dry localities will prospect from one to ten cents and in places as high as fifty cents per pan Some of the boys have got to picking gum chance spots on the hill sides and make from $8 to $10 per day to the hand and sometimes as high as $20 carrying the dirt fifty and one hundred yards But it is impossible as yet to give you any definite idea of the mineral character of this country for gold is scattered in small quantities all over this section as far as prospected, which has been done only to a very limited extent The main creeks have not been prospected as much as the hills and gulches, as the loose gravel is too porous and drives out the prospector from the great quantity of water which rises in the hole

Capt R Bledsoe who came in from Boise on Wednesday informs us that winter weather is setting in there in earnest A great many persons were preparing to remain there during the winter and others were coming out to find more congenial climates. Captain B expresses the opinion that the mines are extensive and that the most of the country prospected will pay good wages. A number of claims have been located which prospect from $1 to $2 to the pan but those are the exception and not the rule Gold is found on the river bars in the gulches and on the benches and hill sides The full extent of the mines will probably not be known this fall New diggings were being found in the vicinity almost every day

AMERICAN GENTILITY —In European countries the aim at anything like gentility implies keeping one or more domestics to perform household labors, but in our free States every family aims at gentility, while not one in five keeps a domestic The aim is not a foolish one though follies may accompany it—for the average ambition of our people includes a certain amount of refined cultivation; it is only that the process is exhausting Every woman must have a best parlor, with hair cloth furniture and and a photographic book, she must have a piano, or some cheaper substitute, her little girls must have embroidered skirts and much mathematical knowledge, her husband must have two or even three hot meals every day of his life and yet her house must be in perfect order early in the afternoon, and she prepared to go out and pay calls, with a black silk dress and card case In the evening she will go to a concert or a lecture, and then at the end of all, she will very possibly sit up after midnight with her sewing machine, doing extra shop work to pay for little Ella's music lessons All this every capable New England woman will do, or die She does it, and dies, and then we are astonished that her vital energy gives out sooner than that of an Irishwoman in a shanty with no ambition on earth but to supply her young Patricks with adequate potatoes —T W Higginson

A GOOD WORD FOR THE SKUNK.—The American Agriculturist takes up the cudgels in defence of the poor, despised but seldom kicked skunk and gives him a good notice Our contemporary says

All summer long he roams your pastures at night, picking up beetles and grubs, poking with his nose potato hills where many worms are at work He is after grubs not tubers He takes possession of the apartments of the woodchuck who has quartered himself and family upon your clover field or garden and makes short work with all the domestic arrangements of that unmitigated nuisance With this white backed sentinel around you can grow clover in peace, and the young turnips will flourish Your beans will not be prematurely snapped, and your garden sauce will be safe from other vermin The most careless observation of his habits shows that he lives almost exclusively upon insects While you sleep he is busy doing your work helping to destroy your enemies In any fair account kept with him the balance must be struck in his favor Thus among the animals we often find friends under the most unpromising appearances, and badly abused men are not unfrequently the benefactors of society.

☞ The family circle is a divinely constituted relation ordained in infinite wisdom for the highest and best of purposes The love implanted in the heart of the parent, and the principle of subjection impressed upon the mind of the child, constitutes two links in a chain of influences that reach from the cradle to the grave

Some Things I Have Learned.

I have learned that a farmer who leaves his legitimate business and embarks in merchandizing, or any outside speculation in no wise connected with his farming is in danger of losing his farm Nine tenths of those who have lost their farms in the last five years in this country may attribute their loss to the mistaken notion that they could make money easier and faster in some other business

I have learned that a man who is in the habit of trading at one store and at another store and at half a dozen stores during the season on credit and thinks in the fall he owes about fifty dollars will be likely to find when he settles with all that he owes the fifty with a figure [illegible]

I have learned that the only safe way for a poor man is to pay for everything he buys [illegible] in the family at the time he purchases he will then be more capable [illegible] which will do him the most good the merchandize or the money [illegible] their way

I have learned that there are many things we think we need, which by adopting the above rule we are forced to do without and we get along just as well and are just as happy

I have learned that it will some time [illegible] to buy seeds and farming utensils at reasonable prices, on credit, when the probability is that the use of them will be worth several times the interest

I have learned that nine tenths of the agricultural machines that are offered for sale are of no use whatever unless it be to line the pockets of the sellers and some fail to do that

I have learned whoever buys a machine or any other thing on credit and pays for it when he agrees to can buy again on credit, when he has occasion

I have learned that men who pursue agriculture merely for the purpose of supporting themselves and families, and not from any love of the business, seldom do more than accomplish the primary object.

I have learned that what people can do well they generally like to do, and what they cannot or do not do well, is irksome

REBELS HANGING PRISONERS OF WAR —A Centreville Virginia, letter of October 28th to the Philadelphia Inquirer says last week a scout named Harris belonging to a Connecticut cavalry regiment was hung at a place about a mile beyond Aldie, and every day the rebels are becoming more audacious in the execution of their fiendish purpose. Two other men while scouting were taken prisoners of war What their fate will be is hard to determine

LABOR REVOLTS IN BERMUDA —From the New York papers we learn that advices from Bermuda to the 4th of November, bring reports of extensive and formidable labor revolts chiefly among the negroes, which had taken place at St Vincent lasting ten days. They resulted in the plunder and destruction of numerous planters estates the maiming of planters and the killing of many negroes—The trouble was only allayed by a military force co operating with the armed British vessels Excitement also prevailed in Barbadoes

The Etna which passed Cape Race on Saturday afternoon, reports that Garibaldi's name has been mentioned in connection with the crown of Greece, some of the papers saying that the ex dictator had already been sounded on the subject of his acceptance

A Richmond journal describes General Lee's army as so ragged that there is not a negro in Virginia who is not better off than some of the best soldiers and first gentlemen in the land

Men have not altered materially since Shakespeare said "To be honest, as this world goes, is to be picked out of ten thousand"

A false friend is like a shadow on a sun dial, which appears in fine weather, but vanishes at the approach of a cloud

☞ Acquaintances are not always friends though friends were first only acquaintances Select carefully.

Rebel newspapers at last acknowledge a strong Union feeling in Southwestern Virginia
